

Your event in the Mathäser Filmpalast

The Mathäser Filmpalast is a cinema with tradition and a long eventful history.

Back in the days the Mathäser used to be the biggest beer hall in the world. Kurt Eisner used this location to proclaim the Free State of Bavaria.

It was only after the Second World War, when a cinema was built within the complex. Due to its size, the Mathäser Filmpalast was already a successful and popular cinema for premiers at that time.

Beginning in 1996, it was completely built up again and opened the gates in 2003 as a combination of offices and recreation areas in the heart of Munich. Since then, millions of people have been visiting the successful mix of restaurants, shopping-mall, office buildings, privatized medical facilities and the cinema.

Our cinema stands for entertainment, emotion and a special shared social experience. You can use this adventurous character for your personal internal, as well as external event. The Mathäser Filmpalast has everything to offer that makes an unforgettable and successful event, having 14 screens, 3.832 seats as well as enough room for all your needs and wants.

This brochure intends to show some impressions and give a broad overview of our premises and suggestions for your event in the Mathäser Filmpalast. Please contact us for further details.
